Camilla Parker Bowles to become The World's most famous British Second Wife

The marriage of The Prince of Wales to Camilla Parker Bowles on 9th April 2005 will make her The World's most famous British Second Wife and Stepmother.

Linda, a member of The British Second Wives Club, said:

“Everyone at The BSWC wishes The Prince of Wales and Mrs Parker Bowles all the very best for their wedding on 9th April. By marrying Prince Charles, Camilla is not only becoming The World's Most Famous British Second Wife, but both Charles and Camilla will become step parents and Camilla's two children will gain a Step Grandmother who is The Queen of England! I wish them the very best for the future”.

The British Second Wives Club is an on-line support group, offering help, advice & friendship to any lady in The UK who is having problems with their partner's ex, step children or other issues such as harassment, child contact & financial issues, CSA & CAFCASS assessments, the legal system & court orders.

Louise, a member of The BSWC, said:

“Being a Royal Second Wife, and marrying the Queen's son and heir, will bring with it very special problems and issues. Although the wedding will be at the centre of worldwide media interest, you can be sure any issues similar to the sort which effects the members of The BSWC on a daily basis such as family relationships and finance, will be kept well out of the limelight”.

Sarah, a member of The BSWC, said:

“If you take away the Royal connection, this is a second marriage for two people, one divorced and the other widowed, with both of them having two children. They will both become Step Parents to grownup children. There is a slightly different situation as both families know each other well before the marriage. For example, Prince Charles will become Stepfather to Tom, to whom he is already Godfather”.
