Sex in a second marriage “much better than in the first one”

Sex in a second marriage is much better and more satisfying for the man than in his first marriage, a recent survey by The British Second Wives Club found.

The British Second Wives Club found 76% of husbands/partners found sex with their new wife “more satisfying” than with the first wife and 68% said they had sex more often now than previously.

Craig (42), husband of Sarah (39), a member of The British Second Wives Club, from Edinburgh said:

“My first wife was the role model for the Ice Maiden. Sex was so very boring and had been for years. When I met Sarah, who is now my second wife, we couldn’t keep our hands off each other! Three years on, it’s still the same, we’re just like teenagers!”

The survey also indicated men enter second marriages with more care than their first and tend to consider their own needs more.

Ian (45), husband to Hilary (44), a member of The British Second Wives Club, from Dorset said:

“My first wife told me where and when we would have sex – if she fancied it, we did it, if I fancied it, we didn’t. She never took my needs into consideration. I used to feel so used. Hilary on the other hand, understands I have needs and desires and treats me like a real man!”

Phil (31), partner to Gill (33), a member of The British Second Wives Club from Kent said:

“My ex-wife was never much good in bed. I am convinced she only thought sex was for procreation. We have three children and it felt like we only had sex three times! Gill has shown me just how exciting sex can be. It doesn’t have to be only on a Saturday night with the lights out, now the back seat of the car would do, or even in the shed!”

The British Second Wives Club is an on-line support group, offering help, advice & friendship to any lady in The UK who is having problems with their partner’s ex, step children or other issues such as harassment, child contact & financial issues, CSA & CAFCASS assessments, the legal system & court orders.
